

VETERAN'S VERDICT.

The War is Over. A Well-known Soldier, Correspondent and Journalist Makes a Disclosure.

Indiana contributed her thousands of brava oldiers to the war, and no state bears a better record in that respect than it does. In herature it is rapidly acquiring an aviable place. In war and literature oldinon Tewell, well known as a writer as Sol, has win an hotorable position. During the late war he was a friember of Ca. M. I. N. Y. Cavality and of the lath Indiana Internative Volunteers. Reparding an important incumstance he writes as follows: "Several of us old veterans here are using r. Miles. Restorative Nervins. Heart Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills, all of them giving blondid satisfaction. In fact, we have never sed remedies that compare with them. Of he Pills we must say they are the best committee of their mature we have ever known. We have near hundred in a prepration of their mature we have ever known. We have pease but words of praise for them. Levy are the outgrowth of a new principle in bedicine, and tone up the system wonderaity. We say to all try these remedies." Solemon Yewell, Marion, Ind. CHEVIOTS APPEAR TO BE PEREN-NIAL FAVORITES.

Olive Harper Gives Some Valuable Hints an Making Un Fall Dresses-She Cites a Few Examples and Mentions Some of the Coming Novelties.

[Special Correspondence.]
New York, Sept. 13.—Some goods, like some authors, never go out of fashion, and among those we must put the various kinds of cheviots and cloths, but they might be forced into oblivion if it were not that every year sees them in new colors and new finish, which make them appear to be almost other fabrica. The Indies' cloth this season has a satin finish, and the camel's hair is so rough as to be almost coarse. Camel's hair now shows in some instance borderings of bourette, and cloth gowns will not seldom be trimmed with the closely woven "nigger heads," put on in much the same manner as if it were for trim-

It is a question in the feminine mind as to how to have their new dresses made up. It is a very important one, too, so let me give one or two hints based upon the handsomest costumes exhibited this past week. One was a drab lady's cloth, with a draped skirt -that is, the front breadth was wrin-kled considerable and a fold was brought up on the right side. It was stitched over an interlining of flunnel, which made the edge take a rolled effect, very pretty, with little effort. The basque was gathered slightly at the waist and open over a vest of maize Japan crape. At the waist there were two green resettes. The collar and sleeves were very plain, but the gown did not look bare or scanty. This gown could be worn on almost any occasion.

Another elegant dress was made of the new brocaded black goods in ripple pattern. The skirt was plain, save for a wrinkled front and a sash made of silk warp henrietta. The sleeves and drapery on the waist were made of this goods and the upper part of the damassee. These damassees can be worn as dressy church, street or visiting gowns, or they can be worn as half mourning. It all depends upon the rest of the costume, such as hat and gloves, parasol

Many favored ladies are having their new dresess cut en princesse, which always was a pretty style. One model of such a dress was of moss green and coral pink illuminated serge. The corsage opened to the loft shoulder, with silk covered buttons, and the breadth overlapped at the left side and fell in jabots faced with coral pink faille. At the bottom of the skirt there was a line of nine buttons. The skirt was held very full from between the seams. There was a short triple cape to wear with this, with one wide rever and a set of buttons on the opposite side.

A fourth model had a plain plaited skirt of nickel gray cheviot and a waist buttoning only below the bust. The rest was cut away to show a white shirt bosom and cravat and a turndown collar. Over this was a coat buttoned up the front with small silk crocheted buttons. The coat, which was of covert cloth, was three-quarter length and trimmed with narrow bands of "nigger hend" and had wide revers and flat collar, both stitched around the edge. These revers and collar were so arranged that if necessary the coat could be closed quite to the throat. In the back the trimming went straight around.

Moire as material for full dress seems to have gone out, but for sleeves, panels and trimmings it will be mere popular than ever, as it brightens up any fabric and adds a richness that nothing else can, except velvet, and I am not sure that moire is not handsomer than velvet. Among the new fall goods which are cheap enough for everyday wear are the mohairs. These are glossier than ever, if possible, and a few of them are damasse. The mohair is pretty trimmed with velvet ribbons, and it is still prettier when accordion plaited, for it is one of the fabrics that look well when plaited. Damiers will be worn for ordinary house dresses, but are no longer popular for other uses.

Among the new fancies this season the flat seams double stitched will often be seen in all thick material, particularly on cloths and cheviots. Narrow bias bands are stitched on both edges, and this is applied as trimming.

Making Dead Men Breathe. Many methods of restoring the apparently dead have lately been advocated, but the most original plan is that inaugurated by Dr. de Baun. Dr. de Baun took it upon himself to state that if a man died simply for want of breath there is no good reason why he should not live, and the medico proceeded to prove his assertion. He passed a small rubber tube through the nose of an apparently dead infant and down into the threat. Closing the mouth, he forced air through the tube from a rubber ply, a friend walked in. bag, inflating the lungs. He then released the pressure from the month and found, as he expected, that the elasticity of the muscles of the chest caused immediate contraction of the lungs, forming a complete respiration. This is said to have been kept up for 45 min- son .- Tit-Bits. utes, at the end of which time natural respiration was restored, and the life of the child was saved. The success of this experiment induced Dr. de Baun to make further tests, and he is reported to have discovered that animation may often be restored by this means within 15 minutes.

The Egg Question in Hotels, The egg question in a hotel that laughs at expense in the endeavor to secure for its guests what is more than palutable has the closest attention. For the most part the middle man operates here, though the eggs do not lie on his hands long. Among many hotels I have failed to find one that uses any but warranted eggs, and even these are broken by skilled assistants separately before they are used by a cook or baker, for one faithless egg can wreck gallons of soup or cake galore. In the Holland House this incidental duty means the breaking of $2,500 worth of eggs every month. Never less than 120 dozen are used per day. The Mariborough hotel Take your Prescription to Topeka Drug averages 200 dozen every day. During the World's fair the Palmer House reached the average of 600 dozen -Chautauquan.

A Fable For Fathers.

He was the son of a worthy Manchester citizen and had just returned from colloge. His father was a brusque, matter of fact man, who had no liking for anything pronounced, and he noticed with sorrow that his son returned with the latest thing a collars and various other insignia of a dukedom. The old gentleman surveyed him critically when he appeared in his office and then blurted out, "Young man, you look like an idiot."

Just at that moment, and before the young man had time to make a fitting re-eccating a Separation. "Do you give gas here?" asked a wild looking man who rushed into a dentist's office on Clark street. "We do," replied the dentist.

"Does it put a fellow to sleep?" "Sound asleep, so you can't wake him up?"

** Yes. ** "You could break his jaw or gouge out his eye, and he wouldn't feel it?" "He would know nothing of it."

"How long does it make him stay asleep?" "The physical insensibility produced by inhaling the gas lasts a minute or

A Tooth Lined Coffin.

There is no accounting for taste. A dentist died in a rural town in England a few days ago after spending over 50 years in pulling the molars of his fellow citizens. He had made it a hobby to keep all the teeth which he had drawn in the course of his professional career and took great pride in the collection. When his will was opened, it was found that he had ordered the collection of teeth to be placed with him in his coffin for burial. His heirs fulfilled his command, and almost 30,000 teeth were put into the coffin with the dead dentist. If some archeologist of a future century shall happen to open that grave, he will have "food for thought" and some difficulty perhaps in explaining the presence of so many teeth .-New York Tribune.

The Vaticand's Biscouraged.

It is reported from Rome that the pope complains to his intimates that Vatican affairs were never so bad as now. "All the states," he said, according to The Corrière di Napoli, "are preoccupied with the social question, the populations are surrrounded with an unhealthy atmosphere or are in a condition of alarm and discomfort, and we are in the power of the enemy without a hope in the future." The sums derived from the St. Peter's pence are very small | what the cause-in fact if your skull in spite of many pilgrimages, and the incomes from the papal possessions are frequency of the attacks will diminish much diminished. - London Chronicle.
